Dear Sir or Madam;

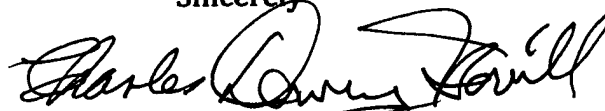

On March 3, 2010 I assembled the materials for a provisional patent application, including a personal check for your fee of $110. Shortly after that I mailed this to you and last week I received a return post card with the message shown here, indicating that you had received my materials.

Unfortunately last week I found on the floor of my working area the $110 check I thought I had sent to you. It had somehow been lost in the process without my knowledge.

I have subsequently written you another check which is enclosed herein. I trust that it will find its way to the proper person in your organization.

Sincerely

Charles Dewy Havill
